

ALMOST READY TO MAKE ITS REPORT

LEGISLATIVE COMMITTEE ON
STEPHENSON INVESTIGATION
FINISHING DOCUMENTS.

MAY RECOMMEND NEW LAWS

Which Will Seek to Prevent Use of Large Sums of Money in Campaigns in Future.

Madison, Wis., Jan. 10.—The legislative committee which investigated
this afternoon had not yet finished its report for submission to the Governor.
It is unofficially stated today that huge expenditures have been found in connection with the investigation
which have tended to debauch the voters of the state.

The legislation will be recommended to prevent a repetition of this evil
was also unofficially announced.

After eighteen months of investigation and research a final report has been drafted and signed by all members of the Senate Industrial Insurance committee of the 1909 legislature.

The committee which was appointed to investigate industrial accidents and devise a system of uniform compensation for an optional system. Employers will be furnished a uniform
schedule for compensation for employees who suffer injury under the law.

The committee consisted of Senators A. W. Sabin, Ashland; E. T.
Fairchild, Milwaukee; J. J. Blaine,
Hoschek; and Assemblyman Wallace
Ingalls, Racine; C. D. Culbertson,
Stoughton; W. D. Egan, Superior and G.
D. Drew, West Milwaukee. Of these Senators Sabin and Blaine are the only ones who return to the 1911
legislature.

The bill proposed by the committee
makes it optional with employers
whether or not they shall come under its provisions. Those who do not will be subject to suit at common law, as heretofore, and in addition will suffer
the loss of their principal safeguards
in damage suits, by the abolition of the "assumption of risk" and "fellow servant" defenses. The defense of contributory negligence remains unchanged, a feature which is of great importance to the agricultural interests, and removes any objections the farmers may otherwise have had against the scheme.

The schedule of compensation provides that in case of death the employer's dependents are to receive an amount equal to four years' earnings, payable the same as wages. In all cases of accident causing injury the employer receives 66 per cent of his wages, paid weekly, providing the disability extends over a week, the first week's indemnity falling due upon the twenty-eighth day after injury.

The bill provides that employees of employers who have elected to come under its provisions must also choose whether or not they will also be subject to it or will remain free to sue for damages in case of injury. No provision is made for joint contribution
to an insurance fund by employers and employees. The proposed law is to be administered by an "Industrial accident board," which is to have the power to employ expert examiners to take testimony and report to the board, the findings of the latter body
to be final unless overturned by the court.

The large fees charged by attorneys in personal injury damage suits
are shown in the report to range from 25 to 70 per cent, and this item is not down as one of the large economic wastes under the present system.

An interesting feature of the report
is that fact that following each section
in the proposed bill is a detailed explanation of that section. Several statistical tables showing the extent of industrial accidents in Wisconsin are shown in the form of appendices.

PROPOSE NEW LAWS ON PRIZE FIGHTING

California Would Make It a Severe Penalty for Even Aiding in a Fight.

San Francisco, Jan. 10.—One to three years' imprisonment and fine of one
to five thousand dollars will be the penalty of prize fighters, promoters,
timers and trainers, if the California
legislature passes the most drastic bill ever introduced. The measure bids fair to kill all prize
fighting in California.

lot of clothing and the deal was to be completed today. He had considerable money.

Increase in Gas and Electric Rates.

LaCrosse, Jan. 10.—Announcement is made here today that the Wisconsin
State railroad commission will convene here February 10th to act upon the application of the La Crosse Gas
and Electric company to advance

claiming the company seeks permission to make enormous profits on junk machinery and past business mistakes.

FOURTEEN DROWNED IN A SEVERE STORM

Driven Ashore in Storm
Lost Their Lives.

Highland Light, Mass., Jan. 10.—
Fourteen men, comprising the captain and crews of three coal barges in tow
of the tug Lykens, were drowned during a gale today. The barges were driven ashore on Peaked Hill and within a few hours had gone to pieces.
A heavy sea balked the rescue. The last two victims sank from view at ten this morning, according to the life-savers.

American Naval Officer Who Blundered
at London's Lord Mayors Dinner To Suffer.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 10.—President Taft today declared commander
W. S. Sims, should be publicly reprimanded. Sims is the United States
Naval officer who, at a recent dinner
given in London by Mayor of that city, declared that if Great Britain
ever were seriously threatened, she could depend on "every man, every dollar, every drop of blood" in this country.

PENSION INCREASES PASSES THE HOUSE

Adds Forty Five Millions A Year To
the Pension Funds—No Central Bank Measure This Session.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 10.—The House today passed the Sillaway general pension bill which grants a pension from $12 to $36 a month to all soldiers who served ninety days in the United States army in the Civil War,
or sixty days in the Mexican war, and who have reached the age of sixty-
two. The bill adds forty-five million dollars a year to the pension roll.

It was practically decided today that no currency reform legislation will be attempted at this session of congress
and that no effort will be made by the national monetary commission to launch a Central Bank bill.

AGED MAN KILLED WALKING ON TRACK

Eckersley, aged fifty-nine, a resident of this place, was instantly killed today when struck by a southbound St.

three children.

SCHENK TRIAL IS CENTER OF INTEREST

Wheeling, West Va., Jan. 10.—The testimony of three witnesses in the Schenk poisoning case today enabled
the state to establish the millionatpacker's illness and trace its origin through distinct stages and suspicion was first directed against
Mrs. Schenk. Throughout the morning session Mrs. Schenk sat in court with downcast eyes. Women fought for seats in the court room and constituted a large part of the audience.

UNCLE SAM'S HOPEFUL—WATCH HIM GROW.

LORIMER AGAIN IS SEVERELY GRILLED BY NEW SPEAKER

Blond Boss of Illinois Has to Listen to Another Ditter Attack on His Election to the Senate.

Washington, Jan. 10.—That it is the intention of the anti-Lorimer ranks
not to permit the Illinois senator to escape from the coils of their net was evidenced today when in an exhaustive and carefully prepared speech, Senator Crawford of South Dakota today denounced all the methods employed by the agents of Senator Lorimer in the legislature of Illinois, and declared it was his conviction that Senator Lorimer was not entitled to regain his seat in the senate.

In the face of Senator Lorimer's repeated protestations of innocence, Senator Crawford flatly charged the latter was cognizant of the questionable practices of his lieutenant.

The evidence taken by the sub-committee, in his opinion, showed conclusively that the election of Lorimer was
the outcome of a carefully laid plan,
beginning with the election of Edward Shurtliff, whom he described as a
"bitter enemy of Senator Hopkins and political henchman of Lorimer," to be speaker, and Lee O'Neill Brownie,
leader of the minority.

Senator Crawford concluded by announcing that he stood ready to vote
for a resolution to unseat Senator Lorimer.

along dairy and cheese-making lines
will be given. This association ranks
next to the state association.

RELATIONS OF TWO NATIONS STRAINED

Repulsion of French Forces by Aid of Ruler Under British Influence Cause
of Coolness.

London, Jan. 10.—The Franco-British entente cordiale is undergoing a strain more severe than either government is willing publicly to admit because of the recent repulsion of French
forces by natives in the Wadai district
of the Sudan.

The French defeats are attributed to the support given by the sultan of Darfur, a British subject, to the Mas-sadi tribe. The French government has interrogated Great Britain, with scant diplomacy, as to what measures
the latter has taken to police and control the Anglo-Egyptian sphere of influence in the Sudan.

The reply of the British government has not been made public, but the nature of it may be gathered from the conditions of the country where the recent hostilities have taken place
which have so bitterly humiliated France.

Darfur is undoubtedly in the British sphere of influence, but the country
is practically independent under its sultan, Ali Dinar. The country is unsettled and the resort of slave dealers
whose caravans, coming from the south, move northward to Tripoli,
trading in ivory, gum and slaves.

The district is bounded on the Egyptian side by vast deserts where the wells are from 20 to 50 miles apart.
To reach the sultan's capital an Anglo-Egyptian force of fully 55,000 men would be necessary. Such a force would die of thirst enroute.

The conquest of Darfur must be done with the railroad. Great Britain's position is that she is unwilling to spend enormous sums in railroad-
building through barren, worthless
country for purely military purposes,
especially when her own way out in the Sudan is secured. It is pointed out that that part of Darfur which lies in the French sphere of influence is rich in date palms, lemon groves and grain,
and that France could therefore more easily afford to build the railroad
which is necessary for the subjugation
of all Darfur.

The French Government's contention is that failure on the part of Great Britain to keep its subject sultan
in good behavior is a direct violation of the terms of the entente.

The district effected is about the size of Texas.

CARROLL'S MESSAGE HAS MANY CLAUSES

Chief Officers of the Cruiser Des
the Different Forms of Reform.

San Francisco, Jan. 10.—Governor
Carroll in a message to the legislature today recommended a general revision of the primary election law, a wider power for the railway commission in gas, and a concurrence in the proposed amendment for the federal income tax laws.

TUBERCULAN TESTS ALLOWED BY LAWS

Supreme Court Upholds the Milwaukee Ordinance.

Milwaukee, Jan. 10.—The city of Milwaukee can now demand of shippers nothing except milk from tuberculin tested cows. The celebrated tuberculin test case has been decided by the supreme court, which affirmed
in all points, the city ordinance requiring tuberculin tested milk was constitutional and valid. This declaration is of wide spread interest because of other large cities which have passed ordinances of a similar nature.

FRENCH GYPSIES HAD MUCH POWER

Woman They Hypnotized Had To Be Wakened By Physician—Two
Are Under Arrest.

Toulon, France, Jan. 10.—Two Gypsy women are awaiting trial here on the charge of hypnotizing countrywomen
and obtaining money from them.
Mme. Solda, one of the victims, was hypnotized and told to "give over the hidden treasure of $100." She had only $10 but willingly went about the neighborhood trying to borrow the remaining while the Gypsy women waited at her home. A neighbor struck by her strange appearance, came home
with her and the culprits ran. It required a doctor to "waken" Mme.
Solda.

INSANE PRISONER ATTACKED SHERIFF

Knocked Officer Insensible and
Would Have Killed Him if Man
Had Not Escaped.

Marquette, Wis., Jan. 10.—T. J. Curran, the new sheriff at Marquette, Mich., was attacked by a violent insane patient late last night and narrowly escaped with his life. William Craig, who was being held for an examination for insanity, made the attack when the sheriff investigated a noise in Craig's cell. Curran who was severely beaten laid unconscious after the attack and finally escaped
when the insane man's attention was directed away from him.

IMPORTANT RULING BY SUPREME COURT

Several Cases of Importance Relative to the Public Utility Law Are Decided This Morning.

Madison, Wis., Jan. 10.—The supreme court today handed down two important decisions affecting the administration of the public utility law,
one affirming the validity of the "inde-
terminate period" feature, which supersedes franchises, and the other upholding the "aput truck" law.

The law knocking out the justice courts in the city of Milwaukee was held invalid and the petition for a rehearing in the case of Ward E. Hodges of Milwaukee, convicted of wife murder, was denied.

MANY KILLED BY AN EXPLOSION

Gun Powder Factory at San Martin—
Twelve Bodies in the Ruins
Taken Out.

Monrovia, Ky., Jan. 10.—Many fatalities were caused by the explosion of a gun powder factory at San Martin today. Twelve bodies have been extricated from the ruins. A search for the other dead will be continued.

MAPPING OUT ROUTE OF CAMPAIGN FOR CIRCUIT

Stewards of Grand Circuit Meet Today
to Determine Plans for Coming Racing Season.

Buffalo, N. Y., Jan. 10.—The stewards of the Grand Circuit assembled
for their annual session here today.
It is expected that when the meeting
adjourns the route of campaign for the big horse races and jockeys for next summer will have been determined definitely. For the first time in several years the stewards have more applicants than there are berths to fill.
Indiana, Grand Rapids, Detroit
and Dover, N. H., have applied for admission to the circuit, and it is probable that one or two of the applicants will be taken in.

THREATEN VIOLENCE IN BATTLE TO PUT DOWN LORD'S POWER

Liberals in England Said To Be Determined To End Power Of House Of Lords.

London, Jan. 10.—Threats of what sounds very much like physical violence are beginning to be made in connection with the battle for and against the preservation of the legislative powers of the House of Lords.
Lord Rosbery—once a Liberal, but now a decided Conservative—started them before the recent election, with
the plain statement, in a campaign address relative to the Lord's veto, that continued assaults such as the masses
were making upon the hereditary lawmakers would soon leave the latter no
resource but a resort to force.

Now the Liberals, infuriated by the danger that the aristocracy may continue to resist even after three successive defeats in the polls, are beginning to reply very outspokenly. "There must be no hitch this time," is the declaration of Reynolds' Newspaper, a Sunday publication which is perhaps the foremost of the progressive organs.
"The blocking power of the Lords must go. The people have the right privilege of recording their vote but
the peers the higher privilege of rendering the votes of no effect."

"Democracy will no longer be content with the barren honor of relinquishing at the polling booth. It is determined to rule at Westminster, and rule
it shall though its passage to the legislative chamber should be over the protruding bodies of titled despots."

The Conservatives are taking Reynolds' reference to "the prostrate bodies of titled despots" literally and there is much excitement over it.

MAY NAME PEERAGE OF "STRAPHANGERS"

Trouble Threatened For Liberals If
King George Attempts To Change
Character Of House Of Lords.

London, Jan. 10.—If King George creates the 500 odd peers necessary to transform the House of Lords from a Conservative into a Liberal assembly
they will be known as the "straphangers."

The London Daily Express invented
the title and it made a hit instantly.
It's so appropriate. And to accept a "straphanger" will be one of the severest tests of party loyalty that any politician was ever called upon to undergo. For the fact that he is a "straphanger" will never wear off and the "handle" it will furnish the "straphangers" political opponents threatening to be sufficient to wreck many a promising public career.

The Express has suggested, as titles
are sure to run short before a batch of straphangers has been created, that the "straphangers" be known by numbers, and this hasn't improved matters
any. In short, the Liberals are likely to have considerable trouble in finding candidates for the new titles—assuming that the King consents to confer them.

PRIMARY ELECTION TODAY IN FLORIDA

State-Wide Vote Taken Today to Select Successor to Sen. Tallaferra, Whose Term Ends in March.

Tallahassee, Fla., Jan. 10.—For the fifth time within two years a Statewide primary was held in Florida today for the selection of an United States senator. The winner in the primary will be elected to succeed Senator Tallaferra, whose term will expire next March, and who is not a candidate for re-election. There are three candidates for the senatorship, William A. Blount, a lawyer of Pen-nsacola; John N. Macintosh, a real estate dealer of Jacksonville, and W. P.
Bryan, a Jacksonville lawyer. In the event that no candidate in today's primary receives a majority of the votes a second primary will be held January 31.

jured here today when a landslide

ing them beneath a mass of earth and

Moines Passed Away While His

mander John Luby, of the Cruiser Des

Verde islands.

ASSEMBLIES OF THE LAWMAKERS

LEGISLATURES OF THREE STATES
COMMENCED LABORS TODAY.

DEMOCRAT TO SUCCEED KEAN

As Senator From New Jersey—Preliminary Skirmishing for 1913
Election in Kansas Begun
At the Session of Legislature.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Trenton, N. J., Jan. 10.—The legislature that is called upon to select a democrat to succeed John Kean, republican, in the United States senate, convened at noon today. By common consent the senatorial contest
is to be given the right of way and the indications are that all legislative business will be shelved until after the senatorship is decided. It is expected the fighting will begin two weeks from today. But it may be many weeks before the outcome of the fight is decided, for rarely has there been such a bitter struggle for a seat in the upper branch of congress.

There are but two active candidates
for the seat, former United States Senator James Smith, Jr., democrat
from Essex, one of the largest counties of the state, and James E.
Martine of Plainfield, known throughout New Jersey as the "farmer orator."

Behind Smith is the democratic machine, behind Martine, Governor-elect Woodrow Wilson, the first democrat
governor in New Jersey for sixteen years, and whose strenuous opposition to the election of Smith has formed one of the remarkable features of the contest. Martine was Indiana's last senatorship at the primaries last September and Dr. Wilson declares that the legislature should follow the indorsement.

So bitterly has the war between Smith and Martine been waged that the prediction is now heard on all sides that neither will be elected to the senatorship, but that a compromise candidate will be chosen. Senator Smith's friends do not say they can elect him over Mr. Martine, but they declare they can "outlast" a stronger and more capable man than Martine.

James E. Martine is a quiet and reticent character. He is forceful, eloquent and convincing in his speeches, and as a spellbinder has few equals in the state. He desires to be known as a progressive. He probably has been a candidate for more offices and with some success than any other man in New Jersey. He has run for the assembly four times, for the State senate four times, for Congress twice, for governor twice and for the United States senate once before the present occasion.

Senator Smith, Mr. Martine's opponent, has been considered the real leader of the democratic party in New Jersey for many years. He is a business man and a well-known lawyer. His first political office was that of councilman in Newark in 1877. He was elected local official until 1907. He was elected United States senator, his term expired in 1909.

Among the democrats who mentioned as possible "dark horse" candidates
in the event that neither Smith nor Martine can be elected are Judge
Howard Carrow of Camden county,
Clarence Cole of Atlantic county, Congressman Hughes and Kinkead, Judge
Mark A. Sullivan, Frank Katzenbach,
Jr., and William H. Gourley.

Important Session in Kansas.
Topeka, Kan., Jan. 10.—The session
of the Kansas legislature, which has now convened promises to be one of more than usual importance. Though a United States senator is not to be elected until 1913 the lines of the coming contest are defined pretty clearly
already and it is expected the present session of the legislature will witness preliminary skirmishing of an important character.

Senator Curtis, who will ask re-election two years hence, will be opposed by Governor Stubbs. Curtis is a staunch and radical independent. To make his position more secure with the progressive element,
which is slightly in control of the legislature, Governor Stubbs will champion several radical measures. The governor will make his hardest fight
for the passage of a public utilities
law which will provide for a commission to have full control over all utilities to operate in more than one county. This would include railroads, express, telegraph, telephone, and interurban lines. The governor will also fight for the initiative and referendum, the recall, and for a change in the constitution so that state officers
may be elected for four-year terms and ineligible for re-election.

"RED WIDOW" WILL BE MOVED TO JAIL

Residents of Parisian Quarter Object
to Gullotine and It Will Be Taken to Prison Yard.

Paris, Jan. 10.—Owing to the objection to having the guillotine as a neighbor, and the protests of the residents of the quarter, "The Red Widow" is to be removed from "her"
home in the Rue Folle-Régault, and as soon as a hangar can be built for
"her" at the prison, the guillotine will be moved there. The new rather frequent excursions of the gruesome machine got on the nerves of her neighbors.

HALL & HUEBEL

One of the Vita-graph's Best Life Portrayals "Jean and the Waif"

This is a wonderful story. Jean is a dog, petted and pampered; the waif is a sweet but neglected little girl—an orphan, who lives with a woman who makes her work hard. The child runs away from her miserable surroundings and finds a welcome into the hearts and home of Jean's owners. Jean is not jealous, but accepts the little waif as a friend and companion and in every way shows his love and happiness. It is truly a wonderful picture for the children to see.

BRIDGE ENTHUSIASTS TO GO TO LINE CITY

Regulars and Insurgents of the Local Lodge of Elks Invited to Beloit Lodge of Order. Last winter the enthusiasm over bridge in the local Elks' club rooms was increased greatly by the games between the so-called Regulars and Insurgents of the lodge. The Regulars entertained a team of players from the Beloit lodge and in turn went to Beloit as their guests. Later the Insurgents of the local lodge took a hand in the game and defeated the Regulars and the game happened in Beloit. Now the Beloit Regulars and Insurgents have issued a joint invitation to be their guests at a dinner on Monday, January 16, at Beloit, followed by a bridge tournament. In order to make plans to accept this invitation the Regulars and Insurgents of the local lodge will meet at the Elks' club rooms on Friday evening of this week to form a team of twenty men to go to Beloit and play. CLAIM "ANGELUS" IS COUNTERFEIT Picture Recently Turned Over To French Government Said Not To Be the Original, By Millet. (BY UNITED PRESS.) Paris, Jan. 10.—"The Angelus," of the Chateaubriand collection of masterpieces just turned over to the French government and installed in the Louvre Museum, is said to be a counterfeit. Chateaubriand, the eccentric millionaire who recently died and bequeathed the world by his French funeral in Paris, paid $138,130 for the picture to an American named Hutton, of the American Art Association. Negotiations were carried on through a Frenchman named Gardier, who, after purchasing the painting, it is said, had it "restored". Gardier is not to be found. "The Angelus," painted by Millet, at Barbizon, France, was originally ordered by an American. The price was to be $300. He refused the picture which was then sold by Millet to Baron Pappelein, a Belgian, for $200. Artists do not consider it Millet's masterpiece, saying that though only an ordinary work it has become popular by reason of its romance. The general opinion is that if the Chateaubriand "Angelus" is genuine, it was ruined by the restoration.

El Paso, Tex., Jan. 10.—Gov. Albert T. Terry, at Chihuahua, declared that the rebels were in a panic and that seventy-three surrendered at Matamoros and asked the kindly offices of the federal government, declaring that they had been misled into joining the rebel army.

Word is awaited at Chihuahua as to the fate of a number of prominent federal leaders at Guerrero, who were taken prisoners while the rebels held the town, and are said to have been executed when the rebels had to retreat. A generally credited rumor says the men, Jose Politico of Guerrero district, Urbano Zee, Juez de Letras, Martin E. Norman, Postoffice Inspector Suarez and a number of other prominent men were stood up and shot to death on the order of the rebel, Jose Politico, Abraham Oros.

An official report from Parral to Chihuahua said that in the vicinity of Santa Cruz del Rosario, the Seventh Infantry had a fight with rebels and killed and wounded several, taking captive seven men.

NEGRO TAKEN AS SLAYER

Man Identified as Assassin of Mrs. Fine Is Under Arrest.

Police Find Many Clues to Substantiate Identification of 8-Year-Old Girl in Murder.

Providence, Jan. 10.—Cliff Thompson, a negro, was positively identified by 8-year-old Anita Dalsivich, as the man whom she saw in the store of Mrs. Minka Fine between the time that the murder of Mrs. Fine was committed and the body discovered. The police found a vest upon which there were four large fresh blood stains, and a coat, the front of which was slashed in several places. The coat looks as if it had been torn with a fork, and the police theory is that Mrs. Fine had defended herself with the fork which her assailant later used to mutilate her body.

THREE PASTORS IN JAIL

Brothers Kill Moonshiner During Row in Their Church.

Ministers Were Holding Christmas Services When Law Breaker Started Trouble and Was Shot Dead.

Elizabethtown, Jan. 10.—Rev. James A. Kimmons, Rev. Bunyan Kimmons and Rev. Judson Kimmons, all brothers, and members of the Baptist church, were jailed here on the charge of murder. The preachers shot Carl Lingerfelt to death on Christmas day at Mount Pisgah church. Since then they have been in hiding for fear they would be killed by Lingerfelt's friends. Lingerfelt was a moonshiner and had threatened to kill the preachers unless they ceased attacking the violators of the prohibition law from the pulpit. Christmas day the preachers were holding services at Mount Pisgah church, when Lingerfelt entered and tried to break up the meeting. The ministers drew their guns and fired on Lingerfelt, and he fell dead just inside the church door. The Kimmons brothers have been bitter in denunciation of moonshiners and have many enemies.

What kind of boat?

HE NEVER HAD A BEAU LIKE THAT BEFORE.

By Roy Rutherford Bailey with Davy and Dorfy

Snix, The Prison Breaker

THE twins stopped before the vacuum cleaner and stared at the prisoner within—surely, the jolliest little prisoner that ever smiled through the walls of a glass jail. He stopped, looking back and forth for a moment, and tried his claws again on the smooth glass sides; then another fit of mirth struck him, and he rolled over and over, laughing as if his capture were the best joke of the season.

Snix trembled. The strong draft had upset him a bit. "Let me out, then!"

The mouse tipped the cleaner over on its side—no use. He and Willy turned it upside down—no better. Snix, getting frightened now, scrambled up the glass sides a way, only to fall back over and over. He looked so sad and sick, all of a sudden, that Dorfy began to cry. The Ticklemouse scratched his gray head and thought.

"Ah, I have it!" He knelt beside the exhaust hole, put his mouth to it, and blew till his cheeks puffed out like toy balloons. At the third puff—pop! Something flew out of the rubber hose and landed on the kitchen floor. Snix was out of prison again!

The rest sighed with relief as Davy and Dorfy shook hands with their new friend, the Laughingmouse. But not Snix—he just threw back his funny head and laughed as if somebody had just whispered, "Who'd like a nice cheese shortcake?"

ly, for electric lights were something new in Doverville. Whizz-z-z-whirr-r-r! went the motor inside the glass walls and the air inside the rubber hose—and Snix stopped laughing in a hurry.

Private reception! If he ever lays paw on you, the reception'll be too short to be pleasant—he's the cruellest cat in the county." The Ticklemouse looked worried. "Will nothing make you so-her up? Well, push the button, Davy."

Davy pushed the electric button proudly.

"Right-O! Never fear—that's my motto, Ticklebrother, never fear! Imagine a private reception from Taft! Ah, ha, ha!" And off he went again.

Confused Impressions. "Of course, you know the story of William Tell," said the serious citizen. "To tell you the truth," replied Mr. Cramos, "I'm not clear about him. I can't exactly remember whether he was a great marksman or a famous opera singer."

LARGE WAREHOUSE LOST IN FLAMES

FISHER TOBACCO STOREHOUSE NEAR CEMETERY BURNED LAST EVENING.

TOTAL LOSS NEAR $30,000

Building and 400 Cases of Tobacco Were Completely Destroyed—Cause of Fire Is Unknown.

Fire destroyed the Fisher tobacco warehouse, located just beyond the north limits of the city near the cemetery last evening, and with the exception of the framework of the building and some seventy-five to ninety cases of tobacco which are badly damaged, the building and contents were completely consumed.

It was seven o'clock when the fire was discovered and the department was informed of the fact by phone. When they arrived at the scene of the conflagration after a run of nearly two miles, the west wing and northern end of the main building were in flames and soon afterward the walls fell. From the appearance of the fire when the department arrived it seemed that it had started toward the middle of the building near the place where the west wing joined the main building.

Three loads of hose, each 300 feet long, were laid from the two nearest hydrants on Washington street, one at the end and the other a block up the street. Two streams of water were thrown on the structure and from the first the entire efforts of the company were expended in saving the southern end of the building, if possible, and to prevent the houses across the street from being ignited from the intense heat.

The fact that a fairly strong south wind was blowing saved the neighboring buildings and had the breeze been blowing from an opposite direction it would have been necessary to turn the water on them and let the warehouse burn.

In the neighborhood of 447 cases of tobacco were consumed with the building. Of these some 200 had been sold and were to be delivered this morning at the price of $34 to $35 per box. The remainder were valued at an equal figure which will make the total loss on tobacco alone nearly $25,000. Abel Fisher and S. B. Heddles visited the scene of the fire this morning, however, and it was found that between 75 and 100 boxes were in shape to be looked over, and although damaged considerably by smoke and water, some small amount may be found of value. The tobacco was insured to the amount of $20,000 in various companies, which does not quite cover the total value.

Various estimates are placed on the value of the building, which was owned by the Cleveland estate, ranging from $5,000 to $7,000, which was covered by insurance to the amount of $3,500. It was a large structure, the ground space of the main part being 42x140 feet with two floors, and the wing of one floor having a space of 42x60 feet. It was a frame structure covered with sheet iron and the dry pine frame burned readily.

In speaking of the cause of the fire this morning, Mr. Fisher said he had no idea of how it could have started. It had at first seemed possible that it might have caught from the chimney, but this was in the southern end of the warehouse, some distance from the middle where the flames were first seen. The night watchman, L. P. Anderson, who was in the building when the fire started, was found asleep and had to be informed of the danger he was in.

It was after three o'clock when the fireman left the scene of the disaster, as it was thought wise to turn the water on the burning ruins. This is the second fire on this site, the Victor Manufacturing company's plant having burned there about fifteen years ago.

The insurance was divided among the following companies: Springfield Fire and Marine, $2,000; Liverpool, London, and Globe of New York, $1,500; Mechanics' and Traders, $1,500; Michigan Fire Marine, $1,000; Citizens' Insurance of Mo., $1,500; Continental, $2,000; Westchester Fire Ins. Co., $1,000; National Fire, $1,000; Western of Toronto, $2,000; Granite State, $1,000; Hamburg Bremen, $1,000; Aetna, $1,000; Insurance Co. of North America, $1,500; Liverpool, London Globe, $1,000; Central Manufacturers' Mutual, $1,000. Total of the stock insured, $20,000. The Continental Insurance company carried insurance on the building amounting to $3,500, making a total insurance of $23,500 on building and contents.

JUDGE IS HEARING ACTION INVOLVING WIDTH OF A ROAD

Case Of Charles Taylor vs. Village Of Orfordville In Circuit Court Today.

The case of Charles Taylor against the Village of Orfordville, is on trial today before Judge Griffin. The hearing is for the purpose of determining whether that part of Main Street, north of Church Street, in the Village of Orfordville, is three rods or four rods in width.

Mr. Taylor asserts that it is only three rods and has been maintained at that width since 1848. The Village of Orfordville claims that it was laid out as a four rod road December 25, 1848. Mr. Taylor answers this contention by stating that, while an order was passed by the Commissioners of the township of Spring Valley, laying out the road of the width of four rods, it never was in fact laid out or worked to that width, and that fences have been constructed and trees set out along the road ever since 1848, on the theory that the width of the road was and is only three rods.

June 14, 1910, the village of Orfordville ordered Mr. Taylor to build a sidewalk in front of his premises, on this road, on a line established by a surveyor a few days before. He refused to comply with this order of the Village Board, and constructed a sidewalk in the place where it should be if the road were three rods in width. He also secured an order enjoining the Village from interfering with the sidewalk that he had built, or from constructing or building any sidewalk upon his estate. He claimed that if the lines of the road were changed, and a sidewalk built on the village ordered, it would encroach upon the front porch of his house, and entail the destruction of a number of trees.

It is claimed that the survey upon which the Village Board based its order directing Mr. Taylor to build the sidewalk, had also been found to be erroneous. Of course, there are many other contentions on both sides, which the court will be obliged to solve. Several of the oldest residents of the township of Spring Valley and Orfordville will figure quite prominently in the case.

Thos. S. Nolan is attorney for Mr. Taylor. Fisher & Oostreich and J. T. Jeffers represent the Village of Orfordville.

Among the witnesses subpoenaed in the case were: Attorney Burr Sprague, of Brookfield; Thomas Munnell and G. O. Gieseler of Stoughton; and Mr. Wright of Evansville.

Because of the fact that so many of the older residents of the village have been summoned to give testimony in the suit, it has been jokingly termed by them, "The Old Settlers' Picnic."

The taking of testimony in the case will probably occupy the attention of the court all day tomorrow.

HAS RESIGNED HIS OFFICE AS AGENT

E. H. Marvin Gives Up Position As Local Agent Of American Express Company.—W. M. Glen Succeeds Him.

E. H. Marvin for the past seven years local agent of the American Express Company, has given up his position voluntarily and expects to take a vacation to recuperate. His health which has suffered from overwork. His place is being filled for the time being by W. M. Glen of Milwaukee, who has been soliciting agent of the company.

Mr. Marvin has been employed by the express company for the past thirty-one years. He is one of its most trusted and faithful employees, and is recognized as one of the best agents in the state. The worries of his office during the busy season of the Christmas season and his zealousness in attending to all the minor details of the work have wrought on his nerves and he feels that a rest is needed. He chose at first to resign his position here, but when his resignation was sent to the Milwaukee office, the officials there refused to consider it, choosing rather to give the vacation needed rather than lose his services. As soon as he is able to resume his duties here, it is their intention to place him back at his post and, if necessary, to lighten his load of responsibility, will probably give him an assistant cashier.

TWO BASKETBALL GAMES THIS WEEK

Harmonia Five Of Jefferson Plays Tomorrow Night and Chicago Cardinals, Former Cubs, Coming Saturday.

Manager Langdon of the Lakota Cardinals has booked two good basketball games for this week at the West Side rink, the first of which will be played tomorrow evening with the Harmonia Five of Jefferson. This five while it has not played much in this territory, and is practically unknown here, has achieved a reputation for itself in towns and cities adjacent to Jefferson, and is said to be one of the strongest basketball fives in the vicinity of Madison. They come here expecting to give the Cardinals, who now claim the state championship, a vigorous rub.

On Saturday the Chicago Cardinals, formerly known as the Chicago Cubs, will play here. While the name of the organization has been changed the organization is practically the same and even stronger than it was last year when the Cubs met the Janesville Cardinals for the first time and were defeated.

CALF GETS ABOUT WITH BUT 3 LEGS

Robert Ashton Of La Prairie Is The Owner Of Natural Freak Which Is As Playful As Its Fellows.

Robert Ashton, a farmer residing in the town of La Prairie, about two and a half miles east of the city on the Emerald Grove road, has on his farm a natural freak in the way of a three-legged calf, which seems to have reversed the general rule in regard to such curiosities which usually die soon after birth. One front leg is lacking, only a tuft of fur showing the place where the member is placed in ordinary calves. The calf forelimb serves as a support for the head and forward portions of its body, while the animal motions are guided by the rear legs. The animal is now several months old and seemingly as healthy as any other calf. Despite the disadvantage at which it is placed it is able to walk about, hopping on the one leg, almost as well as the other calves.

The postponement meets with general favor owing to the fact that retailers are at present in the midst of their inventory.

SUGAR CASES SETTLED

Government Accepts $700,000 in Full Settlement of Actions.

Amount Received Is Accepted as Compromise in Frauds by Trust on Customs Duties on Sugar.

Washington, Jan. 10.—The United States government will accept the compromise of $700,000 in full settlement of the drawback cases in which the sugar trust at the port of New York defrauded the treasury of large sums of money. The $700,000, which was first deposited in the United States sub-treasury in New York, is now in the vaults of the treasury here. Secretary MacVeagh probably will sign a letter today accepting this sum in settlement of the cases.

In taking up the compromise offer the government will assume the attitude that it has not sufficient grounds for prosecution. The sum of $700,000 in hard cash has been thought better by officials than a suit which might not result favorably for the government.

The decision to accept the $700,000 was reached after a thorough investigation by United States Attorney Wise at New York, Assistant Secretary of the Treasury J. P. Currier and William P. Thompson, solicitor for the treasury department.

WILL CELEBRATE WITH EXPOSITION

Instead Of Waste Of Money, Cubans Will Open Show of Island Products On Independence Day.

(By United Press.)

Havana, Cuba, Jan. 10.—Cuba will celebrate the second anniversary of the establishment of the government in a more sensible manner than she usually exhibits in her celebrations. Instead of appropriating vast sums of money for festivities, most of the money going into the pockets of the select few and no permanent good resulting therefrom, the program for the coming celebration is to hold a national exposition, one which will illustrate the resources of the island, agricultural, horticultural, industrial and mineral. The national show is to be opened on January 28, the second anniversary of the day when General Jose Miguel Gomez was inaugurated President of the Republic of Cuba, and also the evacuation of the island by the Army of Cuban Pacification.

There will also be other observations of the day, but this will be the most notable one, and it will be sure to draw a great deal of attention from the United States. The producing wealth of Cuba has increased so much during the last twelve years that the people of Cuba are anxious to show the people of the world what they have here now, and at the same time the people of the world are a little bit interested, and if they can simply go to Havana and satisfy their curiosity without going on long and tiresome tours over the island, there will no doubt be a large attendance from different parts of the United States.

This is not to be an international affair, and many county or state fairs in the United States have been much larger in extent than this first effort on Cuba's part will be, but there is no country in the world that can put up a display as interesting to the people of the States and Cuba can.

The exposition is to be held in the beautiful Botanical Gardens in the edge of the city. This place has such historical connections that it is in it self a point of great interest to the tourist and sightseer. It is in the former summer home of the Captain-General of Cuba. Here it was that "Butcher" Weyler lived during his stay in Cuba.

Did Not Work Both Ways.

Mr. George Jones, R. A., a painter of battle pieces, etc., who died some years ago, specially prized himself on his resemblance to the Duke of Wellington and used to dress up to the character. Someone mentioned the likeness to the duke, and added: "It must be great, for people in the street often speak to him for your grace." "Very strange," muttered the great man; "no one ever spoke to me for Mr. Jones!"—Edmund Yates.

Now They Know.

The baby in the street car was crying a natural baby wail, and the woman who was carrying it resented the commiserating glances of the rest of the car.

"What is the matter with the poor little dear?" asked one woman.

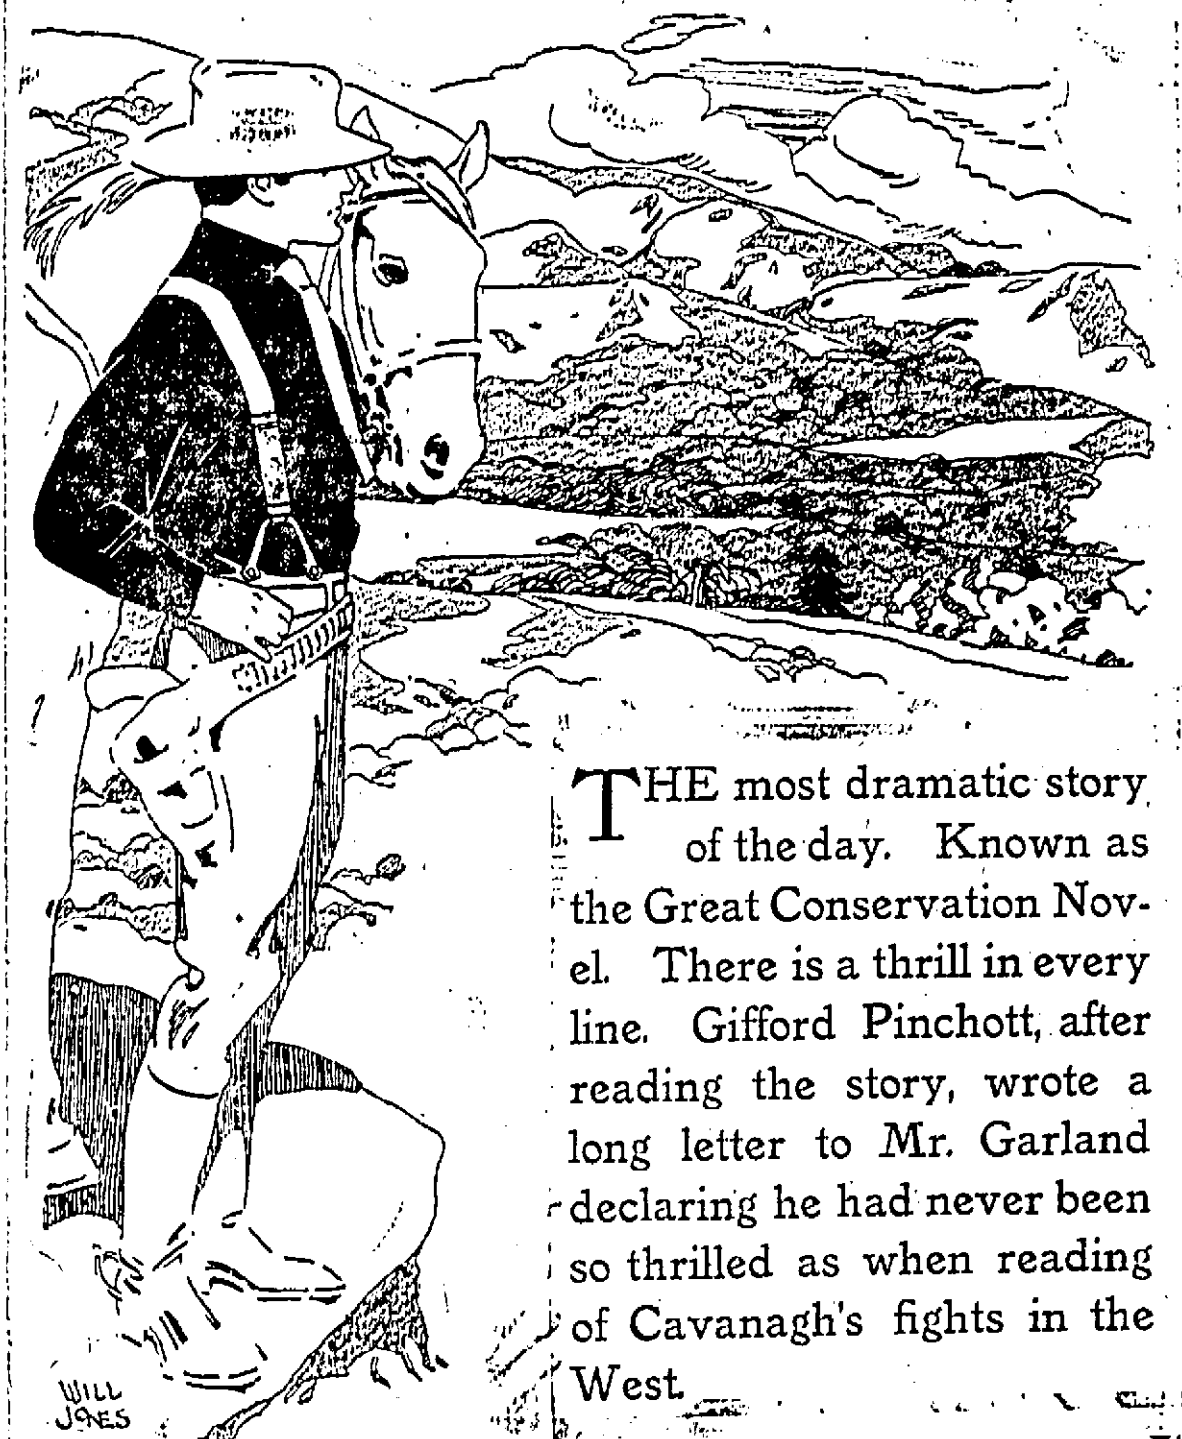

"It is annoyed to have to ride in a common street car where everybody present can talk about it," snapped the custodian, pushing the button for the car to stop.—Buffalo Express.

Cloth From Old Ropes.

An English manufacturer has succeeded in making a fabric from old ropes. He obtained a quantity of old rope and cordage, unraveled it and wove it by a secret process into a kind of cloth. The resultant material he dyed a dark brown. A suit of clothes made from this queer stuff was worn by the manufacturer himself, and it is said that he has a large trade in this line in the British colonies.

MOTION PICTURES TO AID IN LABOR MOVEMENT

Parisian Unions Will Use Pictures to Illustrate to Wives and Sweethearts of Members, Union's Purposes.

(By United Press.)

Paris, Jan. 10.—The General Confederation of Labor has brought several motion picture machines and will give exhibitions in connection with their meetings. Strike pictures, rioting, life in workshops, etc., will be shown with a view to interesting the laborers' wives and sweethearts who will hereafter form part of the assemblies. The theory is that many strikes are unsuccessful by reason of the women demanding their men go back to work.

Lure of Nobility.

You can lure a man to hell by sugar plums and feather beds, but the only way to tempt a soul to nobility is to appeal to the soldier instinct in him.

PAID PART OF THE JUDGEMENT

COMMON COUNCIL ORDERED PAY-MENT OF ATTORNEY'S FEES.

CITY OFFICERS' REPORT

And Other Matters Mostly of a Routine Nature Occupied Attention of City Dads at Short Session.

A part, but not all of the judgment in the Kelly case, was ordered paid by the common council last night, that portion relating to the payment of labor bills held up for two weeks because of a discrepancy in the figures of the city's books and the amount set down by Judge Grimm. Mayor Carle made the announcement just before the close of the regular meeting and said that in view of the circumstances he considered it wiser to postpone the payment until the discrepancy had been investigated.

The bill of John Cunningham, Mr. Kelly's attorney, was, however, ordered paid out of the city treasury as ordered by the judge, the amount of the bill being $293.73.

Other business transacted at the meeting was merely of a routine nature consisting principally of the consideration and adoption of the reports of the various city officers for the month of December. Eight aldermen attended the session, Aldermen Brown and Scott being the absent ones.

Mayor Carle announced the appointment of John Dalton as special policeman without pay from January 9 to April 8, 1911, and on motion of Alderman Huebner, the mayor's appointment was confirmed.

Current bills for the month of December, amounting in all to $274.27 were reported by Alderman Lowell and the clerk instructed to draw orders on the city treasurer for the payment of the same. The report of the city treasurer for December was accepted.

Alderman Dull of the Judiciary committee presented the report of Judge C. L. Fifield of the municipal court for the month of December and it was adopted. The report showed court fees collected of $27.20; fines, $147.00; penalties, $10; city marshal's fees, $18.50; total, $202.70. All of this was turned over to the city treasurer and the court fees reported.

Street Commissioner H. C. Fractor's report on the brick used in laying crosswalks in the various wards of the city and his report of the gutter and crossing plates used were accepted. On May 1, 1910, there were 1,400 brick on hand, and May 26, six thousand more were purchased. All of these were used in the second and fourth wards. In addition to this, 25,556 paving blocks were purchased and disposed of as follows: Furnished to contractors, 6,717; first ward, 688; second ward, 1,110; third ward, 2,016; fourth ward, 13,492; fifth ward, 505. Of the crossing plates, 193 of the 18-inch size were used at cost and five of the 12-inch size. Three hundred and thirty of the 12-inch gutter plates and 129 of the 16-inch gutter plates were used in the city in 1910.

S. C. Burnham, clerk of the board of education, made the report of that body for the month of December. It was adopted by the council and is published in this paper.

The city marshal's report by Chief of Police George M. Appleby showed that the number of arrests made in December totaled 103. Of these, 68 of the offenders were taken to court, while 35 were discharged. Arrests were made for the following offenses: Larceny, 2; assault and battery, 1; stealing coat, 1; abusive language, 1; disorderly, 1; inmates house of infamy, 3; drunkenness, 94. Officers credited for arrests were: Appleby, 12; John Brown, 6; Fanning, 18; Morrissey, 12; Champion, 3; Sam Brown, 18; Dorn, 19; Dalton, 3; Hallen, 13; Dull, 1; William Brown, 1.

That the street commissioner be directed to enforce the provisions of the city ordinance and the city charter requiring owners or occupants of abutting property to keep their property free from snow and ice, was the order introduced by Alderman Sheridan and adopted by the council. At the request of the City Engineer Korch in order that the plat might be put in shape for assessment, Alderman Evans introduced an order, adopted by the council, ordering the city engineer to plat certain pieces of land near the cemetery, described as follows: "That part of lot 2, section 28-3-12 bounded on the north by Ashland avenue; east by Washington street; south by Magnolia avenue and Rice's addition; and west by the said Rice's addition and the westerly line of said Rice's addition extending north to Ashland avenue."

Adjournment was taken a few minutes before nine.

MUSIC LOVERS GREATLY PLEASED

The Apollo Club Enjoyed Most Delightful
Evening With Finished Singer.

It has been the endeavor of The Apollo Club to bring to Jansville for their concert the best talent available. In offering last evening of Madam Laella Chilson-Ohrman, a lyric soprano of unusual qualification even the most critical members of this exclusive musical organization were delighted.

Laella Chilson-Ohrman has a voice of extended range and beautiful quality. Schooled perfectly and well adapted to the selections she rendered last evening. Aside from her wonderful voice Madam Chilson-Ohrman has a great personal charm which adds wonderfully to her success. Her accompaniment, Miss Ford, also proved a most agreeable surprise to the club and her opening selection, a ballad, Opus 17 was most gracefully rendered.

Madam Chilson-Ohrman's program was delightfully changed from that originally designed for the evening, but gave her a far wider range to show her capability than would the numbers planned for. A Pastoral Old Ballad, by Yorgine, followed by For Sonnet, by Meyer, endeared her to the hearts of her audience. Then followed the remainder of the program.

Polonaise from Mignon, Down in the Forest, Dearest Eyes that Gazed in Mine, May Time and the Ecstasy by Rummell. However Madam Chilson-Ohrman had reserved her best numbers for the closing of the evening entertainment. Garbed in Japanese costume she sang some of the most beautiful selections from the Opera Madam Butterfly. She was forced to respond to many encores and among the selections rendered was one of the popular airs from the Chalkdust Soldier.

Miss Ford, the accompanist, did so without intermission and showed wonderful technique in her work. Both she and Madam Chilson-Ohrman have closed contracts to appear in the east. Madam Chilson-Ohrman with the Boston Opera Company, and Miss Ford to play in New York City.

Madam Chilson-Ohrman is a Wisconsin young woman, having studied at Lawrence University, and later in Chicago, under the best teachers. Her gown and jewelry were the envy of all the ladies at last evening's concert.

NEWVILLE.
Newville, Jan. 9.—Miss Minnie Walsh, who spent New Years day with her sister, Mrs. F. H. Sherman, returned to her home at Madison, Monday evening last.

On account of the cold weather the chicken pie supper given by the L. A. S. was held at Mr. Cooper's instead of at the hall, as originally planned. Owing to the stormy weather, only a few attended, but those who were there reported a good time.

The Misses Mable Brown, Leora Sherman and Edith and Lillian Cooper resumed their duties at Edgerton high school this morning.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Sherman and children went to Lima Saturday to visit her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Lloyd and family. They returned Sunday afternoon.

The crematory company are talking of putting up a pier from the river this week. Heretofore they have always hauled it from Lake Koshkonong at a point a mile and a half distant. If they succeed in getting it from the river, which runs a few rods from the crematory it will materially lessen the cost. No definite plans have been made, however, at present.

L. A. S. will meet on Thursday of this week with Mrs. Caroline Brullin. On January 20, they will meet with Mrs. Frank McCulloch, to do some sewing for her.

Change Food When You Feel Out of Yourself.

"A great deal depends upon yourself and the kind of food you eat," the wise old doctor said to a man who came to him sick with stomach trouble and sick headache once or twice a week, and who had been taking pills and different medicines for three or four years.

He was induced to stop eating any sort of fried food or meat for breakfast, and was put on Grape-Nuts and cream, leaving off all medicines.

MILTON GYMNASIUM NEARLY COMPLETED

Handsome New Building For Milton
College Will Be Ready For Use
Soon.—Cost, $15,000.

[Special to this Gazette.]
Milton, Jan. 10.—The new gymnasium at Milton College, which is now almost completed, will be one of the most attractive and substantial buildings of the kind ever erected. It is built in the Mission style of architecture, of reinforced concrete, with an entrance between the outer wall and the inner wall of white brick. The exterior is finished with a rough surface and the general appearance is simple and elegant. The roof is low and overhanging, the porch at the front is a very attractive style. The walls are exceedingly strong and practically non-conductors of heat and cold. The light is good, and the building will be warm in winter and cool in summer.

The roof is self-supporting with strong steel girders, one of which is strong enough to support a gallery. If one should be added, the roof is of hard pine and asbestos cement shingles. The main room is 60x90 feet with a single 30x60 foot. In the porch are the offices. In the basement, when finished, will be baths, lockers, and toilet rooms.

The building is now practically finished, except the laying of the marble floor, the completing of some of the interior wood-work, and the painting. With the exception of the heating apparatus and the plumbing, it will be completed some time this month, January, 1911. It will cost about $15,000, exclusive of the heating plant, for which definite plans are not yet settled. A central heating plant for this and the other buildings, under consideration, will add at least $3,000 to the cost of the building.

CHAPTER X.

What the Dawn Brought.

The man rose from his seat at the foot of the bunk and, with restless strides, began pacing back and forth in the narrow limits of the little hut. The girl lay still, but her eyes followed him. Her thoughts were keeping step with his.

"There's not much faith in the world, that's true," she said presently. "And yet, that's not exactly the world's fault. When people haven't anything else to walk by, they have to walk by sight—she hesitated a little there, feeling for the words she wanted. "It was no easy," she went on at last, "to clear you of the thing they thought you did yesterday. Couldn't you give them a chance to believe the truth about the other thing too? There must be something you could reveal about that old charge that would wash out the stain of it—something that would make Tom see the falsity of it as clearly as I do."

"No," he said; "that was never possible. It's less possible than ever now."

That involuntary admission told her much. If the thing she suggested were less possible now than it had been before, then, somehow or other, the vindication must have rested in Perry Hunter's hands. But the finality of his voice and the dumb agony she saw in his face, as he paced back and forth beside her, prevented her from following up the admission, or urging him any further.

He pulled himself up sharply and looked at his watch. "It will be daylight in two hours now," he said. "When it comes we'll signal to the yacht and they'll send for you and take you away—you and this precious and you've made. In the meantime, you must go to sleep. You hardly slept at all while I was reading."

"I hardly dare go to sleep—not really deep sleep. If I did I'm afraid you'd turn out to be all a dream, and I'd find myself back in my stateroom on the yacht." She was speaking half in mockery, but there was an undertone of seriousness in her voice. "Think how unlikely it is that all this can have happened," she went on. "You said this morning you were going to leave us, and I watched you go—how can it be anything but a dream that you were hanging aloft there in the sky, above the fog, ready to come plunging down when I cried out for help?"

"I told you once," he said not very steadily, "that one of us might be dreaming, but that one was not you."

"You will promise, then," she asked, "that if I go to sleep, I'll wake up here and not on the yacht, and that you won't have disappeared?"

"I promise," he said seriously. He seated himself once more at her feet, switched off the fading light from the built-in eye and drew the sleeves of her coat across his shoulders. "Good night," he said.

She answered drowsily. "Warmed a little, and oppressed by complete exhaustion, he fell asleep himself. He knew, at least, that he must have done so, when, rousing with a start and springing to his feet, he saw a ray of sunshine splashed golden upon the opposite wall of the hut. It must have been light for hours.

Very silently, very cautiously he unbarred the door and pulled it open. Before opening the outer door, he drew his revolver and spun its cylinder under the thumb-nail. If the roused party from the Walrus were camped near by, it would be well to be cautious before reconnoitering.

He pulled the outer door a little way open and glanced slantwise up the beach. The brilliant light dazzled him and made it hard to see; but apparently there was no one there. Stepping outside, he turned his gaze inland, along the foot of the cliff. His mind was entirely preoccupied with the danger of a sudden rush of enemies from near at hand.

That is how it happened that, for quite a minute after he opened the door and stepped outside, he did not cast a single glance seaward. He did not look in that direction, until he saw that Joanne, awakened by the daylight in the hut, was standing in the doorway. Her own eyes, puzzled, had gone a ship's length, and leave us helpless in the event of our ever finding open water. We may never live to find it, but there's a chance that we will. There are more than 80 lives that I am responsible for about this yacht, and I mean to live up to that responsibility. If we ever do find open water, then I'll do whatever you say. I will take you to Point Barrow and the yacht can winter there. Then when the pack is solid, if you can find dogs and sledges, you can attempt the journey across the ice. I don't believe it can be done. I don't believe there is a chance in a hundred that any single member of the party that set out would live to reach that shore. That, however, is not my affair.

"Or, if you wish, we can take the yacht back to San Francisco, refit her, and come back next summer. I think that with our knowledge of the coast," interlarded, only half awake, were making out to sea. The expression he saw in her face made him turn, suddenly, and look.

The scene before his eyes was beautiful, with that stupendous beauty that only the arctic can attain. The harbor and beyond it, far out to sea—clear to the horizon, was filled with great plunging, churning masses of ice, all drenched in color by the low hanging arctic sun—violet, rose, pure golden-yellow and emerald-green, and a white whose incandescence fairly stabbed the eye. And as those great moving masses ground together, they flung, high into the air, broad shimmering veils of rose-colored spray.

Of the foe, which they had considered stable as the land itself, there was no longer any sign. There was nothing there, nothing at all to greet their eyes, to seaward, but the savage beauty of the ice.

The yacht had disappeared.

CHAPTER XI.

The Aurora.

"I tell you sir, the thing is beyond human possibility. There is no help—no human help in the world."

He swore to that before God. But I think you must know it as well as I do," Captain Warner, standing upon the Aurora's bridge, was the speaker.

The two Fanshaws, father and son, their faces gray with despair, turned away and looked over the great masses of loose, churning field-ice, which, filling the sea out to the utmost horizon, confirmed the captain's words.

"How long?" Tom Fanshaws began, then he paused, moistened his lips and rubbed them roughly with his hand—"How long," he repeated, "shall we have to wait before it opens up?"

"It won't open up again this season—not if I know anything about the arctic," said the captain.

"It will freeze, though," Mr. Fanshaws said, "freeze into a solid pack that we could cross about. How long shall we have to wait for that?"

"It's hard to tell. Generally in this latitude the pack is pretty solid by the first of September. But that was current which caught the Walrus—the current which makes every summer apparently, that long gap of open water which enabled us to reach the land that morning reached—that current would keep loose field-ice floating about for at least another month."

Tom Fanshaws' eyes had almost the light of madness in them. "But she can't live a month!" he cried. "She's alone, unarmed! She has no food; no shelter but those bare huts!"

"The Walrus people doubtless left some stores there, if she could find them," said Captain Warner. "But, still, what you say is perfectly true. She can hardly hope to keep a live a week."

"Then," said Tom, in dull, passionate rebellion—"then, in some way or other, we must go back to her. If you won't go—if you won't take the Aurora back, I'll take one of the little boats and go myself!"

"If you want to commit suicide," said Captain Warner, "you could do it less painfully with a revolver. The small boat would not live 30 seconds after we put her over the side. You know that, if you are not mad. As for the Aurora herself, if she had not been built the way she is, she would have been crushed hours ago. And if I were to lower the propeller and start the engines, they would simply twist the screw off of her before she

"It's strange to me," he said, "that we ever recovered possession of this yacht at all, let alone that we were able to recover it without it costing us the life of a single man. This gang must have had a leader, and a clever one. They way he maneuvered his men to keep them out of sight while he drew away first one party and then the other from the yacht was a piece of masterly strategy. He worked it out perfectly in every detail. He got possession of the yacht without losing a man, without even firing a shot that might give the alarm. And even with the warning we had and with the help of the fog, I don't see how we defeated a man like that. His success must have gone to his head and made him mad."

"He was probably killed in the first volley our people fired when they got aboard," said Tom dully. "He alone could have accounted for half a dozen of you, if he'd ever had a chance—a giant like that."

"A giant!"

"I think he must have been the leader," said Tom. "He was the first man to come aboard, certainly."

"But what makes you call him a giant?"

"Because he literally was. He struck me down with just one blow, and as he raised his arm to strike I saw that his shoulder-cap was above the level of my eyes; and I pass for a tall man."

His father abandoned the subject abruptly, and for a while contrived to talk of other things; of the details of the fight and how different members of the crew had borne themselves. (To be continued.)

The Particular Sex.

rents and where the water is, we might get back to Fiddling Bay by the first of July. Then we can find—whatever there is to find."

His own voice faltered there, and there were tears in the deep weather-beaten furrows of his cheeks. "God knows," he concluded, "if there were any possible chance I would take it, but there is none—none in the world, not unless we could fly through the air."

It was only an hour when they had ascertained, beyond the shadow of a doubt, that Joanne was not aboard the Aurora; until Tom had recovered consciousness, the others had entertained little doubt that she was safely hidden somewhere about the ship.

Cailey's warning, together with the confession of the Portuguese, Miguel, had caused them to steel alongside the Aurora as silently as possible. Not a word had been spoken by any of the party, and the sound of the rising wind had drowned the creak of their own. Half a dozen well-armed men had stolen aboard over the bows to reconnoiter.

Making out the unfamiliar figures of the Walrus people on deck, and knowing that they had a fight on their hands, they had worked their way, unobserved, to a position amidships. Here, under cover of a brisk revolver-fire, they had made it possible for the rest of their party to get aboard.

The Walrus people, several of whom were below, came tumbling up on deck at the sound of firing, and their whole party entrenched itself in the after-deck house. They had found arms of various sorts aboard the Aurora, and made a spirited resistance before they were finally overpowered.

The Aurora's people, under the cool-headed command of Warner and the elder Fanshaws, had proceeded in a brisk, scientific, military style that had spared them many serious casualties. There were a number of fresh wounds when it was over, and one or two of a more serious nature. None of them had been killed.

The Walrus people, however, had not surrendered until their plight was wholly desperate. Only five of them were left alive, and two of these were mortally wounded when the struggle ceased.

The uninjured were heavily ironed and locked up in the steerage. All the wounded—friends and foes alike—were turned over to the care of the yacht's surgeon and a couple of volunteer assistants from among the crew. Altogether, it was two or three hours after the Aurora's people had regained undisputed possession of the yacht before it was possible to form any definite idea of what had happened. In the excitement and the necessity of everybody doing two or three things at once, Tom Fanshaws and his serious plight were not discovered, until he himself, having partly regained consciousness, uttered a low moan for help, which was heard by a chance passerby.

The kale, which had been raging all this while, had gone screaming by unheeded, and it was not until dawn that the horrified conquerors of the yacht discovered that there was no land in sight.

It was several hours after that, not indeed, until the captain had worked out their reckoning from an observation, before they realized that they were 100 miles away from their anchorage of the previous evening, and that their return was hopeless.

Old Mr. Fanshaws gave his arm to his son, helped him down from the bridge and thence to the now deserted smoking room, forward. Tom submitted to be led blindly along, and did not denounce when his father halted beside a big leather sofa and told him to lie down upon it. Since that momentary outburst of his upon the bridge, the young man had been unnaturally calm. His muscles, as he lay there now upon the sofa, seemed relaxed; his eyes were fixed, almost dull.

Through a long silence his father sat there watching him, but there was no dawn of a corresponding calmness in his face. It had aged whole years over night.

"It's strange to me," he said, "that we ever recovered possession of this yacht at all, let alone that we were able to recover it without it costing us the life of a single man. This gang must have had a leader, and a clever one. CHAPTER I.

MATTHEW SHEPHERD AT HOME.

Poorly but not very well contented.

The morning was a dreary one as could well be imagined, even for an English November. Ever since daybreak a heavy wet mist hung over the sodden meadows and dripping trees, and the few remaining leaves crumpled one by one, as if the burden of existence was too great, and the sooner they were trodden under foot the better they would be pleased.

The garden, if such it could be called, which surrounded Bretherton House, shared in the general depression—the lawn, ragged and untidy, had little pools of water here and there, and the few remaining leaves crumpled one by one, as if the burden of existence was too great, and the sooner they were trodden under foot the better they would be pleased.

without covering or any cushions, except one old-fashioned "arm-chair, with a faded crimson cover, in which the old man was now seated.

It was close on 10 o'clock when the door opened and a girl entered with an air of dependence and self-reliance which seemed strangely out of place in that atmosphere.

"You sent for me, grandfather?" she said interrogatively.

"Yes, I did. I have things to say to you. What the door, girl; why do you leave it open in such weather?" and old Mr. Shepherd shivered with cold.

"Why don't you have a decent fire?" she asked, closing the door and advancing to the hearth, where she seized the poker and would have made an onslaught on the coals, but he stopped her savagely.

"But that down, do you hear me? What do you think I am made of, that you would close the fire in this weather? I suppose it was you who pulled the clock halfway up the chimney this morning! It's all on a par with everything else—the waste."

"The waste is something terrible," he said enough to bring her all to the window. She stood straight and tall, and looked at him, not trying to conceal the contempt which was expressed in every line of her curiously intelligent face.

She was of fair complexion, with large grey eyes, and hair of a rich brown, and close shaven lips that appeared capable of keeping secrets to the death, if need arose. Her figure was round and full, and, in spite of the shabby black gown she wore, she was a very striking looking woman, with a proud turn of the head, and aristocratic carriage that would have been noticeable had she been a beggar in rags.

Her cold glance suggested her grandfather with more and he began again.

"You are as bad or worse than that lazy Martha, for she at least who calls herself a cook, for you are always sitting and drinking, and you don't do a hand's turn of work for it."

"Nor do I receive any wages," the girl replied, coolly.

"Wages?" he repeated furiously. "Wages! What about it? I pay you wages for unless it is for eating me out of house and home, or for waiting coal at 3d shillings a ton, and doing nothing! Really, Audrey, you are a cool young woman. But I suppose, when I remember your mother's behavior and the way your father—"

"Stop, grandfather," the girl said, and though she did not raise her voice as he had done, there was as much anger in her clear, incisive tone. "You shall not abuse my parents. You may say what you please of me, but I don't care a straw what your opinion may be, and I will not hear them abused. What ever they may have done—whatever my mother's conduct may have been, she had reason for it. I, for one, could never blame her for taking the first opportunity that presented itself of getting away from this house, where everything is grudged one where every loaf of bread and grain of tea is counted. We may be—poor—in the extreme, but at least when there is food everyone is welcome to it. We do not watch each other eat and gather up the crumbs for the next meal."

"And that is why you are, on the verge of the workhouse," the old man shrieked, and so should I be, if I were in the same circumstances. You are a set of depraved, reckless fools. You shall not abuse my parents. You may say what you please of me, but I don't care a straw what your opinion may be, and I will not hear them abused. that wicked, rebellious daughter of mine who lied to me, and deceived me, and led me about like a fool, and then she left me with that swarming villain, Ralph Byng—she thought he could get me bread for any out of the room, but she was wrong, and she was disappointed.

She felt as if she must suffer if she stayed within the walls and watching up the shabby straw hat which she had thrown onto the hall table when summoned to her grandfather's presence, she went out at the door, regardless of the weather, and down from the terrace which skirted the house to the shrubbery below.

This recipe makes a pint of better cough syrup than you could buy ready-made for $2.50. A few doses usually conquer the most obstinate cough — stops even whooping cough quickly. Simple as it is, no better remedy can be had at any price.

Mix one pint of granulated sugar with ½ pint of warm water, and stir for 2 minutes. Put 2 ½ ounces of Pinex (fifty cents a bottle) in a pint bottle; then add the Sugar Syrup. It has a pleasant taste and lasts a family a long time. Take a teaspoonful every one, two or three hours.

You can feel this take hold of a cough in a way that means business. Has a good tonic effect, braces up the appetite and is slightly laxative, too, which is helpful. A handy remedy for hoarseness, bronchitis, asthma and all throat and lung trouble.

The use of pine oil in the membranes is well known. Pinex is the most valuable concentrated compound of Norwegian white pine extract, and is rich in guleinol and all the natural healing pine elements. Other preparations will not work in this formula.

This Pinex and Sugar Syrup has attained great popularity throughout the United States and Canada. It has often been imitated, though never successfully.

A guarantee of absolute satisfaction, or money promptly refunded, goes with this recipe. Your druggist has Pinex or will get it for you. If not, write for it.
